LMT ACQUIRES SANTA MONICA NETWORKS

Latvian mobile operator LMT will acquire 100% of the data network and IT security provider Santa Monica Networks (SMN).

The completion of the transaction depends on permission from market regulators in Latvia and Lithuania. Once concluded, it will allow both companies, which will continue operating as separate legal entities, to introduce 5G networks more quickly and efficiently.

Commenting on the development, Ugis Berzins, SMN board chairman, said: "We have been driving innovation for many years by introducing the latest technologies in the Latvian market. Together with LMT, we will be able to take innovation to the next level by accelerating the development of various 5G business solutions and enabling more customers to have access to the most advanced technologies and corporate-level technology solutions".

LMT President Juris Binde added: "For a long time, LMT has been more than a mobile communication service provider. We have also been enabling our customers to implement complex business transformation tasks with the help of IT solutions. We have 'Innovator DNA', as does Santa Monica Networks. By combining LMT's experience in mobile communication solutions with the capacity of an experienced developer of data transmission networks and IT security solutions, we will become a leader in digital transformation. Together, we will be the best partner in digitalisation processes for any public sector organization or private sector company".

Livonia Partners is a Baltic private equity firm that currently manages €33 million. Meanwhile, SMN was founded in 1989 and has been offering solutions to Latvia's largest telecommunications, IT and media companies, public sector and financial institutions, as well as manufacturing companies in Latvia and Lithuania, since 2003. ■
